Target audience: 7-11 year olds

Create, connect and share respect: a better internet starts with you

1. #SID2018 – get involved with the social media campaign

Why not get involved in the social media campaign for Safer Internet Day by sharing what you are doing for the day?

Post photos and share what you are doing, adding your voice to the biggest global social media campaign about the safe and positive use of technology.

Make sure you include #SID2018 @UK_SIC

Visit www.saferinternetday.org.uk for more information about other social media activities you can get involved with.

Any photos shared on Twitter using the above hashtag may be retweeted by the UK Safer Internet Centre to our followers and is a great way to get your school's message seen by a wide audience. Only photos sent from school/organisation Twitter accounts will be retweeted.

Important: Please ensure that you have the appropriate media consent from parents for any children appearing in any photos.

2. Create a school/setting community campaign

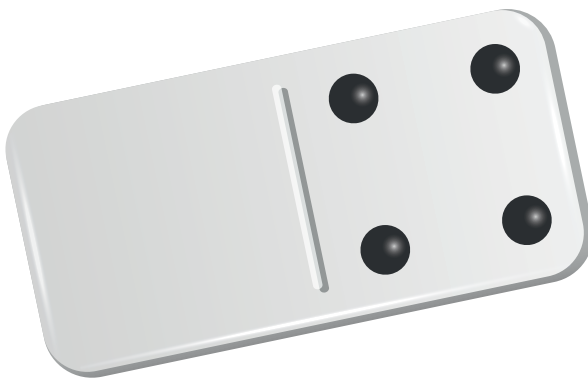

Discuss the idea of 'respect' and what that looks like when you are online. What does it mean to your school/setting community and how can you spread the message? Ask the learners to design and create their own school/setting community campaign which celebrates the idea of respecting one another. It could reach out to children, staff, parents, governors or your wider community. They may wish to create posters, organise an event or encourage others to share positive images or messages.

3. The Diary Room

You may also run activity 2 as a diary room for learners to contribute responses. Begin by setting up a diary room area somewhere in your school/site. During the day, invite the learners to visit the room and have their say. You may wish to put a small group of older learners in charge of running the room, supervised by an adult.

4. Digital Dominoes

Print out one digital domino piece per child (Appendix 1). Learners fill in one half with something that makes them happy online, and fill in the other side with something they like doing for others online. Working in large groups, learners see if they can match up the half that describes what makes them happy with someone else's half that describes what they like to do for others online, and vice versa. See how long the chain can get!

5. Question walls

Place questions around the school/building for the learners to discuss and answer using post-it notes or answer boxes.

Possible questions:

- Do you like going online? Why or why not?
- How do you communicate online?
- Do you act in the same way offline as you do online?
- What is your favourite thing to do with your friends online?
- How can we share respect online?

6. Connect Bingo

Print one copy of the Connect Bingo sheet (Appendix 2) to each learner. They could keep these in a safe place at the school/setting, or they could be turned into a larger display. When each learner experiences or carries out an online action on the bingo sheet, they can cross it off. Facilitators can decide how the game can be 'won' – either the first individual to complete their sheet, or the first group/class to complete their sheets.
